[White Paper Antimicrobial resistance in the animal sector in India]

Corrigendum

[30 May 2024]

The following corrections have been made since the publication date.

Page	Location	Text in printed PDF	Text in corrected PDF/ Notes
7	Bottom. Second to last sentence	The top 10 veterinary antimicrobial consumers in 2017 were: China (45 percent), Brazil (7.9 percent), the United States (7.0 percent), Thailand (4.2 percent), India (2.2 percent), Iran (1.9 percent), Spain (1.9 percent), Russian Federation (1.8 percent), Mexico (1.7 percent), and Argentina (1.5 percent)[14]. (Map 1)	The top 10 veterinary antimicrobial consumers in 2017 were: China (45 percent), Brazil (7.9 percent), the United States (7.0 percent), Thailand (4.2 percent), India (2.2 percent), Iran (1.9 percent), Spain (1.9 percent), Russian Federation (1.8 percent), Mexico (1.7 percent), and Argentina (1.5 percent)[14].
8	Bottom half	Map 1: Top antimicrobial users in the world.	Map removed
10	Middle. Last sentence	INFAAR is being expanded with the inclusion of 15 new institutes so that data generated by INFAAR is truly representative of situation in the country. (Map 2)	INFAAR is being expanded with the inclusion of 15 new institutes so that data generated by INFAAR is truly representative of situation in the country.
11	Full page	Map 2: INFAAR current membership of network	Map removed

Contact: publishing-submissions@fao.org